Welcome to the University of Málaga

please, make yourselves at home in name of our Rector, I welcome you to our University, to this special building in particular and to our city in general.

Humanities for geeks

- History

Humanities for geeks

- History

This building houses the remains of a roman garum factory, which you can admire during the coffee breaks.

Part of the port walls can be seen in the basement.

The building was built for housing the Central Post Office, so this avenue has been known for a long time as the A - B - C of Málaga.

The city has many things to offer you, and those that close are open till eight in the evening, or even later.

Please, take the time to enjoy the city, we have even got invitations for you to take the touristic bus that stops in front of this venue, and goes around the city, ask for them in the registrations desk if you wish to take the tour.

Be connected

- Electricity

Sockets at the seats

We have setup some sockets on the sides of rows 3, 5, and 7 for you to recharge your laptops. As we have not been able to set up many, free them once you are charged.

Be connected

- Electricity
- Wired network

Switch at the back of the room

DHCP with mostly unfiltered routable addresses. I have some (short) wires for borrowing.

- Open wireless

SSID: umaWIFI

For those of you without Eduroam (shame on you).

Open access with DHCP from the same pool as the wired network.

No TLS.

SSID: eduroam

We should know what to do with that ;)
Private addresses, NATed on the router, one to one the first 63, the rest PATed over one IP.
Mostly unfiltered.
